FIRE IN THE HEARTH

"When I was sitting out, it never used to hurt, to hear how much I liked the 'fire'."

"It was kind, being on the grass of the hill, and the wind, and the birds up in the trees."

"You know, I used to hold that old story of the 'fire' in the hearth. It was the 'fire' in the hearth. It was the fire in the hearth. It was the fire in the hearth. It was the fire in the hearth. It was the fire in the hearth."

Background Information:

History of the Orange Islands

The French explorers, Antoine de la Moignon and Louis Joliet, first explored the Mississippi River in 1673. During the next decades, other Europeans explored the river, finding its source, the Rocky Mountains. In 1763, the French ceded the Mississippi Valley to the British. In 1779, the Spanish took the territory from the British. In 1803, the United States purchased the Louisiana Territory, which included Kansas.

In times of peace, the Dodge worked with neighbors and school teams. During times of war, they would not let a 14th birthday pass uncelebrated. Frequently, it took all of them to bring a boy who'd been in the hospital back to his mother's home. Early violence always frightened him, so well-mannered, the Dodge was. They did not interrupt each other in speech and each spoke with honor.

The X-Men feature bookend Mr. & Mrs. Smith, but it's the rocky romance The Thing that's the most intriguing. The Thing stars Jesse Eisenberg and Michael C. Hall, and it's about how two Twilight wannabes end up in a relationship. The Thing is a comedy, but it's also a satire on the whole "teen romance" genre. The Thing is a comedy, but it's also a satire on the whole "teen romance" genre.

Laura and Mary were in Indian Territory, Kansas, several years ago and the day the reporter arrived the two girls and their mother and sister were just about to leave for the city at the river.

The family family 28th, now at the Laura Ingalls Wilder House and Museum in Marshall, Missouri, recorded the birth of Baby Carrie on August 1, 1870. When Pa, Mary, and Laura returned from a day exploring an abandoned Indian camp, they discovered a new sister had been born.

Helen Sewell depicts Ma and Pa in the 1935 edition of Little House on the Prairie.

The Kansas prairie looked like a good place to settle, but it was Indian country. The Ojibwa tribes worried that settlers would cross them away and encroach upon their hunting grounds. All her life, Laura recalled the Indians who chased in the winter. Then Pa heard that the United States Army was riding in to drive off the settlers from the Indian domain. A letter he arrived from Wisconsin, stating that the man who had chased the Peoria farm could not pay for it. Pa and Ma decided to take possession of their old home again. They decided to leave Kansas.

The way to the West to put up some kind of shelter there and claim a parcel of land. Pa drove the wagon past the town and out farther onto the prairie until he found a piece of land that seemed just right. There was a creek flowing through it, and the trees that grew along the creek could provide logs for building and for firewood. More important to Pa, there were wide-open fields of prairie grass with no big trees to cut down or plow around.

Right away, Pa "claimed" the land by building a house on it. There was a lot to do to turn the new land into a home and a farm. With the help of neighbors, Pa first built a small one-room log cabin, and then he built a log barn for the horses. Afterward he dug a deep well near the cabin so the family would have fresh water to drink. Then he plowed through the thick prairie grass to make fields for the spring crops.

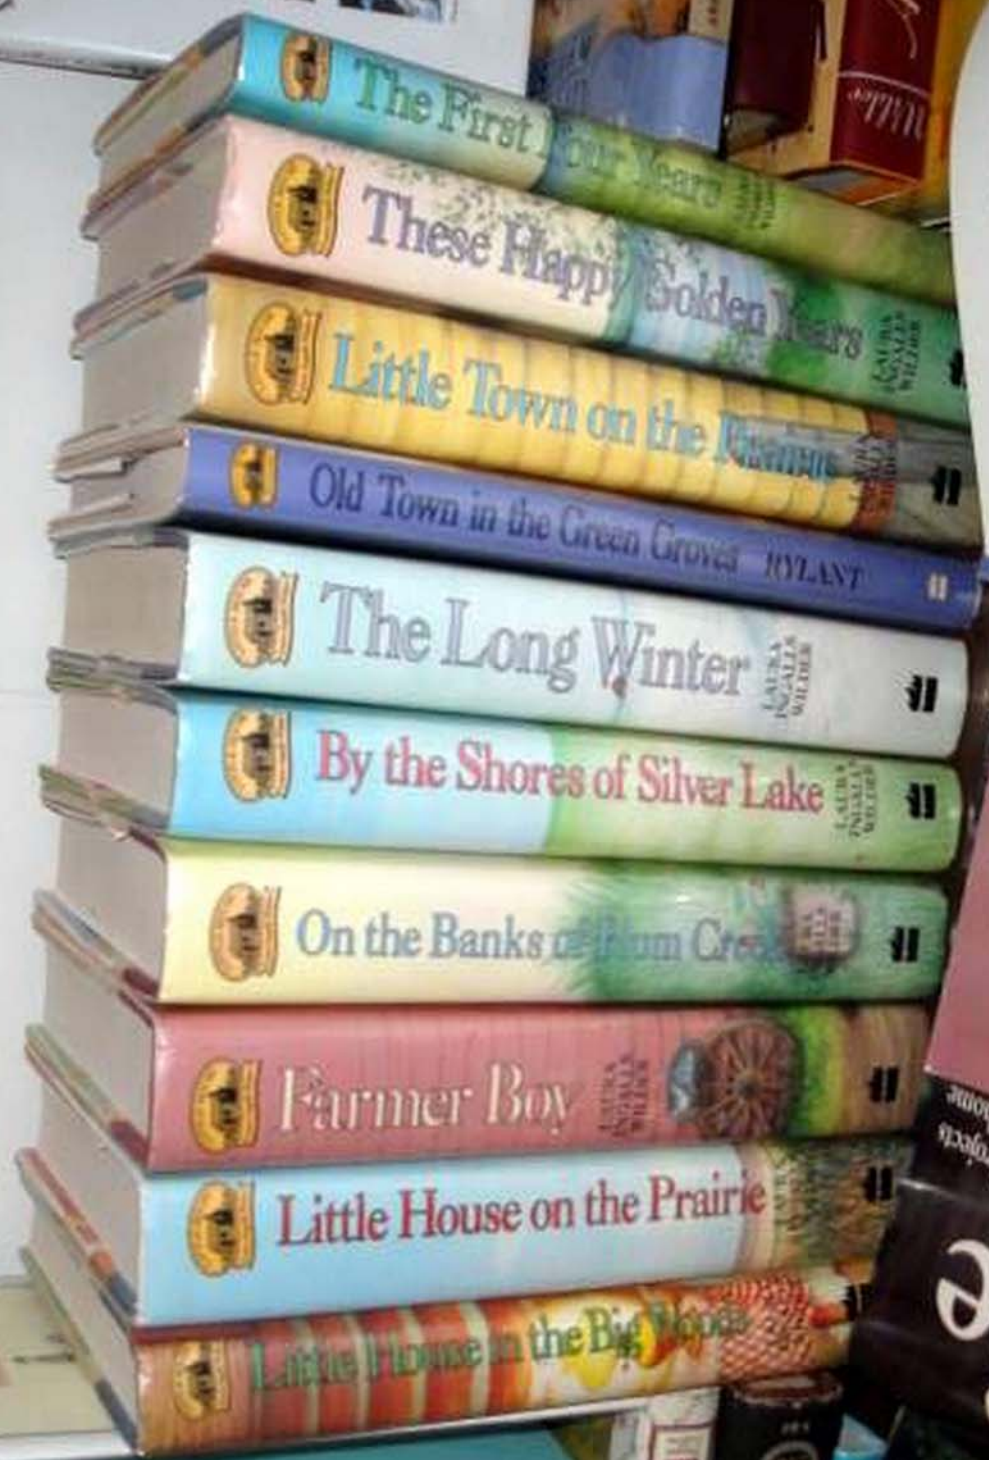

Life was not always easy on the prairie for the Ingalls. They had to fight prairie fires and sickness. The whole family was struck with "fever 'n' ague," which we know today as malaria. The mosquitoes that thrived along the creeks nearby carried the disease. Fortunately, a doctor who lived on the prairie was able to treat them. His name was Dr. George Tamm, and he worked among the Osage Indians who lived by the creeks and rivers near the little house, and who owned the land the Ingalls family lived on.

Despite these difficulties, Laura and her family liked living on the prairie.

Minnehaha Springs School

The first school at Minnehaha Springs (known as Devereux) was taught in a dwelling on the bank above the warm spring. H. M. Lockridge and Mrs. W. L. Harsh were the teachers; this was between 1869 and 1885. The next school was near the Devereux residence. A one-room building was erected at the Springs about 1900. In 1915 a two-room structure was erected by W. L. Herold.

Other teachers who taught at Minnehaha Springs School were:

Vesta Sharp (Sevilla)
Clara Palmer Wade (Sevilla)
Maynard Dillay
Eva B. McCarty

Others who worked at the Minnehaha Springs School were: Maude Wadless, Virginia Burzard.

(This is not a complete list - you may know of others who taught or worked at the Minnehaha Springs School.)

The Minnehaha Springs School closed in 1955.

Teacher's Prayer

I want to teach my students how ~ To live this life on earth ~
To face its struggles and its strife ~ And to improve their worth ~
Not just the lesson in a book ~ Or how the rivers flow ~
But how to choose the proper path ~ Wherever they may go ~
To understand eternal truth ~ And know the right from wrong ~
And gather all the beauty of ~ A flower and a song ~
For if I help the world to grow ~ In wisdom and in grace ~
Then I shall feel that I have won ~ And I have filled my place ~
And so I ask your guidance, God ~ That I may do my part ~
For character and confidence ~ And happiness of heart ~

MEN OF VIRGINIA, TO THE RESCUE !

Your soil has been invaded by your Abolition foes, and we call upon you to rally at once, and drive them back. We want Volunteers to march immediately to Grafton and report for duty. Come one ! Come ALL ! and render the service due to your State and Country. Fly to arms, and succour your brave brothers who are now in the field.

The volunteers from the counties of Pendleton, Highland, Bath, Allegheny, Monroe, Mercer, and other counties surrounding us will immediately merge and report at Monterey in Highland County where they will join the companies from the valley marching to Grafton. The volunteers from the counties of Hardy, Hampshire, Randolph, Pocahontas, Greenbrier and other counties will in this manner merge at Beverly. And the volunteers from the counties of Upshur, Lewis, Berkeley and other counties will report at Phillippi in Barbour County. The volunteers as soon as they report at the above points, will be furnished with arms, rations, etc, etc.

Action ! Action ! should be our rallying motto, and the sentiment of Virginia's inspired Orator, "Give me Liberty or give me Death," animate every loyal son of the Old Dominion! Let us drive back the invading foot of a brutal and desperate foe, or leave a record to posterity that we died bravely defending our homes and firesides—the honor of our wives and daughters—and the sacred graves of our ancestors!

A Bit of History

Huntersville was established in 1821 to 1891 and was named for the hunters and trappers who congregated here at the first trading post in the area. It was the first county seat for Pocahontas County with the first court being held in 1822. Prominent people traveled for Hot Springs and other areas of Virginia to have court in Pocahontas County, Virginia. People wrote about staying in a crude cabin belonging to John Bradshaw while court was in session for the week. Huntersville grew to have hotels, a new courthouse, jail, stables, a ballroom, stores and many homes. During the Civil War times, the town was ravaged and some churches and homes became hospitals for soldiers. Huntersville became a town in the newly formed State of West Virginia.

The Methodist Church of Huntersville is noted for its gothic design and was built in 1886. The Huntersville Schoolhouse was built in 1880 and was one of the last two room schoolhouses to close around 1968.

The Huntersville Courthouse was built around 1822. All that remains of the first county seat is a clerk's office from one end. A jail was built to accommodate the courthouse and later the bars in the windows were used to make horseshoes for civil war soldiers. A second jail (the Huntersville Jail) was built in 1883 and was used about ten years before the county seat moved to Marlinton. It was built out of hard, white medina Sandstone.

The Huntersville Presbyterian Church was built in 1854 and played an important role in the civil war being used as a hospital and headquarters by soldiers.

Huntersville – The First County Seat

Huntersville was the first county seat of Davidson County, North Carolina. It was founded in 1792 by James Hunter, a prominent merchant and landowner. The town was named in his honor. Huntersville was the center of commerce and industry in the region for many years. It was the site of the first cotton gin, the first sawmill, and the first distillery in Davidson County. The town was also the site of the first public school and the first church in the county. Huntersville was the seat of the county government until 1842, when the county seat was moved to Nashville. The town of Huntersville is now a suburb of Nashville and is home to many of the county's largest businesses and industries.

Huntersville Jail

WELCOME! Come in for a tour and piece your feet on the same ground of the inmates of the 1880's.

In 1824, a new jail was built to accommodate the building of court in the newly built courthouse in what was then Bath County, Virginia. This jail holds many stories and inmates of the past have related their feelings to writings on the walls - One of these being: "There is a land of pure spirits, where saints immortal reign, there is a heaven for both and white, but Hell is in this old jail" One inmate, around 1824, who was being found on a charge of robbery, broke through the wall and escaped. During the Civil War, around 1863, a Confederate soldier requested that the iron from the walls of the jail be purchased to make horseshoes for the Cavalry under his command. The iron from the jail was returned to the jail and the remainder sold to citizens of the county. For lack of security, a new jail was requested and around 1881 but was not completed until 1884. Around 1890, while Madison Anderson was used in the construction. By 1891, the town of Huntersville was formed from "Madison's Bottom" and the citizens of the county moved the county seat in Martinsville and this jail no longer being used and being purchased by the Penitentiary Historical Society. It is a monument to the past and a fine piece of our old building the witness of the thousands of the 1880's.
